Leading Change: Navigating the Process of Change

Change leadership is the ability to understand, align, direct, support and lead the “heads,” “hearts” and “hands” in the organization through change. When confronted by change, people go through a time of transition that involves three distinct stages – letting go of what was, learning and experimentation, and settling into and implementing something new. Join us for a dynamic and interactive learning session filled with tools, techniques, and strategies for leading self and others through change.

Our speaker, Georgine Madden, is seasoned Organizational Development and Learning Consultant. She is highly regarded for her work in leadership development, employee engagement and wellbeing, and culture and team building. One of her greatest strengths lies in her ability to understand an audience and enhance growth and learning by relating concepts, strategies and skill building to unique organizational issues and goals. Georgine started her consulting firm, GEORGE, in 2002 with a mission to help organizations set strategies that link purpose, people and performance so that individuals, teams and organizations experience growth and sustained success.
